Laura Whiting specialises in intellectual property dispute resolution with a focus on patent litigation. She has more than 15 years' experience of litigating patents across the industry spectrum, with a particular focus on innovator pharmaceutical products. She also has considerable expertise in advising on SPC challenges and strategy from both a legal and regulatory perspective.

Laura is presently working for some of the world's leading biotech and pharmaceutical companies on projects at the leading edge of scientific knowledge. She is co-ordinating multiple disputes across Europe and beyond, as well as representing clients before the English courts and the EPO.

Laura has represented clients before all levels of the UK courts and the Court of Justice of the EU, and is frequently involved in significant cases before the European Patent Office and in coordinating UK proceedings with parallel actions in various jurisdictions in Europe, the US and Asia.

As well as being a qualified lawyer, Laura holds a Masters in Chemistry from the University of London and has research experience from the Royal Institution of Great Britain. Clients appreciate her deep technical understanding alongside her pragmatic and strategic approach to legal issues.
